3.1 What could have been better about today's session?

What could have been better about today's session?
Slow down, there was a lot of information to take in.
Given a little more time . Maybe extending the days and shortening the time a bit so it's not as overwhelming.
needs to be more engaging
More time to dive into the curriculum
New material. Time for teaching teams to work together to plan for the coming year.
The afternoon 45 minutes that was spent on "practicing" facilitating an Number Talk was ridiculous. Half of us have been doing these for several years. Others were still trying to understand how to interact with the curriculum . The sample warm ups chosen for us to use seemed very random for people who were unfamiliar with them. More information on the hows or whys might have been helpful. Also, I was hoping that we would be given time to actually dig in to the materials/ curriculum and start adapting and tweaking it so that it is more culturally responsive and connecting/relatable for our students. Lastly, will there be any conversation about filling in missing learning gaps from last year? We only taught half of the curriculum to our students. This is going to be an issue.
It would have been better to use those 40 mins to dive into the curriculum with our site teams to work on how to make it more culturally relevant.
time with our school teams not random people
Providing time to do some of planning
It was great

3.2 What went well in today's session?

What went well in today's session?
Understanding the structure of IM Curriculum
Examples of routines
It was refreshing to get a closer look at the curriculum itself. We did a deep dive into an activity that literally opened up my eyes. I had this epiphany where I was making correlations to the way we teach science in SDUSD. It became clear to me that the two processes were almost identical. Many a-ha moments today.
I feel like I got a sense of the flow, and what the learning might look like in my classroom. I built confidence around the process itself, especially the 5 equity based teaching practices.
I really enjoy the Tower of Hanoi activity . And having time to work on it independently.
Lots of great stuff, especially in the morning
It was OK
Introduced new information/websites.
NCTM Effective Teaching Practices
Getting some resources for IM from other teachers

3.3 What additional feedback do you have about their facilitation skills?

What additional feedback do you have about their facilitation skills?
Fun Stuff. Looking forward to tomorrow.
There were a lot of instructions and our break out group often was not super clear what we were supposed to be doing. We also always ran out of time . Shorter tasks would have been better.
Please let out on time .
She was not aware of the group's needs. The material was repetitive for a number of the group and those individuals did not benefit from the training.
Having time today to go over the routine was very helpful. As a group we were quite familiar with the routine, but it allowed us to talk about what was really working and make suggestions.
Today went relatively smoothly, especially compared to yesterday (different facilitator). Facilitator seemed more confident and purposeful.
Loved her - very clear, concise
There was not enough time in breakout rooms and the task/directions were not always clear. It was hard to follow along some of the time .
It was very difficult to follow along with the training today. It was also unclear what today's goal was.
Need more time to process with colleagues. Need small breaks so we dont miss things. 3 hours of talking to is rough.
